Dr. Kurt Devine has been a full spectrum family medicine physician for more than 26 years. He has faced many challenges caring for patients in a rural primary care setting amid evolving care delivery models demanding forward-thinking and creative strategies for change.

Recently, he's begun medication-assisted addiction treatment, introducing the use of buprenorphine as part of his primary care practice. As he continues to provide ongoing support and education to colleagues, Dr. Devine has been a change agent, creating a culture shift within his practice.
